

MathFilm Festival

2008

Call for Videos

The MathFilm Festival 2008 is an international competition for films and videos about mathematics. The festival solicits short videos (2 to 10 minutes) and long films (11 to 90 minutes) covering a wide range of mathematical topics. The selected works will be shown publicly in various cities in Germany and published on DVD.

The festival aims to attract a broad audience: students, teachers, and everyone with an interest in mathematics. Films about mathematics, documentaries about mathematicians and short videos dealing with mathematical research or education topics are solicited. We invite submissions from all over the world! An international jury will choose which of the submissions become part of the festival. The MathFilm DVD with selected short videos will be published by Springer. Awards will be made for the best films in the festival, as chosen both by the jury and by the festival audience.

The MathFilm Festival 2008 is part of the "Year of Mathematics 2008" in Germany, a project initiated by the Federal Ministry of Education and Research (BMBF).

For submission details see www.mathfilm2008.de; online registration is open until 5 February 2008.
